Archangel Don Davis

This is a story about the child spies of the 1960s, 70s, 80s and 90s that shocked the military attaché, diplomatic and intelligence establishments. And, should be a wake-up call on what can happen for any family living abroad or traveling outside their country. This astonishing disclosure reveals kids such as Aaron, Valerie and Robert, and their military attaché handler, General Santiago, along with the lurking perils that lay hidden in overseas life. Not only was there psychological damage to the youngsters and physical dangers to adults and children alike but the covert operation left a perpetual and troublesome scar in the international spy world and with worldwide families.
